PATTADAKAL UNESCO WORLD HERITAGE SITE (……)

Pattadakal, also called Raktapura, is a complex of 7th and 8th century CE Hindu and Jain temples in northern Ka
Located on the west bank of the Malaprabha River in Bagalkot district, this UNESCO World Heritage site represe

The Chalukya king Vikramaditya II (734·744 CE) commissioned the greatest temple here, the Virupaksha Templ
The complex illustrates the confluence of Nagara (North Indian) and Dravida (South Indian) styles of temple arch

KEY TEMPLES AND ARCHITECTURAL HIGHLIGHTS

1. Virupaksha Temple:
The largest and most sophisticated temple in Pattadakal. It features rich friezes depicting scenes from the Rama
The massive monolithic Nandi pavilion faces the sanctum. The sanctum contains a large black stone Shiva Linga

2. Mallikarjuna Temple:
Built concurrently with Virupaksha Temple by Queen Trailokyamahadevi. It is nearly identical in design but slight

3. Sangameshwara Temple:
One of the oldest Dravidian style temples at Pattadakal, commissioned by King Vijayaditya (696–733 CE). It is ch